

Scientists Create Buoyant, Porous Aluminum Foam. Manufacturing America

Developed by scientists at Peter the Great St. Petersburg Polytechnic University (SPbPU) of Russia, a new, extra buoyant aluminum material may make ships and other structures virtually unsinkable, and can also be used to incorporate other advantages. A unique structural modification can essentially turn a reliable, versatile industrial alloy into a new type of foam.

Manufacturing America

Дата публикации: 2021.02.18

>>Перейти к новости

>>Перейти ко всем новостям