

Russian scientists have improved the battery for sensors

Scientists of Peter the Great St. Petersburg Polytechnic University (SPbPU) have come close to creating a solid-state thin-film battery for miniature devices and sensors. The results of the study were published in a special issue dedicated to improved materials for lithium and sodium ion batteries (Energies First Quartile Magazine, MDPI).

You can read the full text of the article here.

Дата публикации: 2020.06.01

>>Перейти к новости

>>Перейти ко всем новостям